ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

In collecting and arranging the data included in this book I am indebted to many persons for their help and to each of them I am deeply grateful, but there are a number of persons who have done more than their share and particularly: Robert Whitehead, the lawyer in Lovingston, Virginia, whose knowledge of the court records in Amherst, which include the suit in which the estate of John Champe Carter was settled, gave me much valuable information; Robert Hill Carter of Redlands; Bernard J. Chamberlain of Charlottesville, Virginia; Mrs. E. W. Gamble, Jr. of Alexandria, Virginia; Mrs. Lewis W. Jennings of Washington, D. C.; John Bowyer Bell of Birmingham, Alabama and Mrs. Champe Carter Meade of The Plains, Virginia (all of the last named are of the Carter kin) have been tireless in their help, but the persons who have carried the heaviest burden are my faithful secretaries, Alyene Arthur and Marie Gengenbacher, who in addition to their usual duties have helped to arrange and type the text, but no doubt hoping all the while that this would be my last literary effort, to each and all of these I give my hearty thanks. Without the help of a single one this work would not have been published.

THE CARTERS OF BLENHEIM

BLENHEIM, ALBEMARLE COUNTY, VIRGINIA

Edward Carter, son of John "Secretary" Carter and Elizabeth Hill, and a grandson of Robert "King" Carter was born at Shirley in 1733 and died in 1792 at the home of a daughter, Elizabeth Stanard (wife of William Stanard), which was a plantation called Roxbury in Spotsylvania County, Virginia, a few miles from Guinea Station on the R. F. & P. Railroad. He is said to be buried at Roxbury and his will is probated in Spotsylvania County.

His father, John "Secretary" Carter, had a patent (1730) for 9,350 acres of land in Albemarle County, which lay immediately south of Monticello, and this grant included the estate known as Blenheim. He also had a grant of 10,000 acres of land on Piney and Buffalo Rivers in Amherst County, Virginia. John "Secretary" Carter never lived in Albemarle, but the Carter name is commemorated in that county in the name Carter Mountain, given to a range of mountains which lay within the boundary of said patent, in Carter's bridge, the bridge over Hardware River and the name Secretary's Ford, given to a ford in the Rivana River near Blenheim. Under the terms of his patent John "Secretary" Carter was required to and did establish at least two residences in Albemarle. In Woods' History of Albemarle County, Virginia, it is said:

> He (John 'Secretary' Carter) never lived in the county but had in it two establishments, both furnished with a large number of servants, the mill improvement on the west side of the mountains on the north fork of Hardware, and the other on the east side called Clearmount, perhaps the same with Redlands or Blenheim.

There is no question but that John Carter's mill improvement property was on the west side of the mountain, not too far from the Hardware River, and this fact is supported by a number of articles that have been published in the Virginia Historical Magazine, wherein mention was made of John Carter having been instructed to send hands from his place Clearmount to repair the road which crossed the Hardware River some three miles distant. Robert Hill Carter, who is well acquainted with the history and geography of 9350 acre Grant, thinks that the Clearmount mentioned was included in the present Roundtop property. Just where the second establishment was is conjectural but Robert Hill Carter thinks the site of the second establishment was at or near Morven and thinks there was little reason to believe it was on the Blenheim site.

When "Secretary" Carter died his Albemarle and Amherst land went to his second son, Edward Carter, who has sometimes been referred to as Edward Hill Carter, but whether Hill was his middle name we are not certain. This Edward Carter acquired additional land in Albemarle contiguous to the 9,350-acre tract. He built Blenheim and, except for perhaps ten years between 1770 and 1781 and a few years after 1788, when he lived in Fredericksburg and Spotsylvania County, Virginia, he made his home at Blenheim. What years he considered Spotsylvania his home can not be definitely fixed, but Edward Carter represented Albemarle County in the House of Burgesses 1767-68-69. Then followed the War of the Revolution and when some of the Convention Troops came to Blenheim in the winter of 1778 the house was unoccupied. In a letter written by Thomas Jefferson in 1779 he said he had heard that Champe Carter was coming back to Albemarle and later when Jefferson and his wife were en route to Monticello from their honeymoon they were caught in a snowstorm and took refuge in Blenheim, then the home of Colonel Edward Carter. Edward Carter was elected to the House of Delegates from Albemarle in 1785 and again in 1788. In his will made on the first day of February 1792, and probated on the 6th day of June 1792, he describes himself as of "the town of Fredericksburg." These facts warrant the conclusion that Edward Carter lived in Fredericksburg or Spotsylvania County during the years above set out.

There is no picture extant of Blenheim, but there is an old insurance policy in the Virginia State Library at Richmond, Virginia, issued by the Mutual Assurance Society in May 1799. On this policy is a diagram of the Blenheim house, which is in the shape of an H and shows dimensions as follows: The front a two story dwelling 60 x 200 feet connected by a one story passageway 30 x 16 feet to a one story hewn log house 32 x 56 feet in the back. This arrangement suggests the thought that the one story part of the house was the first built and later the two story house in the front was built and the two connected by a passageway. In an article in the William and Mary Quarterly, Third Series, Volume VIII (1951) page 567, Isaac Jefferson, a former slave of Thomas Jefferson, who remembered Edward Carter, said:

> Blenheim was a low large wooden house two stories high, eight miles from Monticello. Old Colonel Carter lived thar (Blenheim), had light red hair like Mr. Jefferson.

In the winter of 1778-79 a number of the Convention Troops, that is British soldiers who had surrendered at Saratoga, were brought to Albemarle and confined in the barracks on Mechum's River. General

Philips, an English officer, and a number of other officers were billeted at Blenheim. One of these officers, writing about Blenheim, said:

> The house where General Philips resides is called Blenheim. It was erected shortly after that memorial battle, by Mr. Carter, Secretary of the colony, and was his favorite seat of residence. It stands on a lofty eminence commanding a very extensive prospect. Colonel Carter, its present proprietor, possesses a most affluent fortune and has a variety of seats surpassing Blenheim which he suffers to go to ruin. When General Philips took it, it was crowded with negroes sent to clear a spot of ground a few miles off. The extent of his land is immense and he has 1500 negroes on his different plantations.
> ———— Woods' History of Albemarle, p. 35.

The original Carter patent of 9,350 acres, which included Blenheim, was held intact until Edward Carter died. In his will he devised the mansion house, Blenheim, and the farm that went with it, to his widow, Sarah Champe Carter, for life, with remainder over to named sons. Blenheim is located on the eastern edge of the Carter 1730 patent, about half-way between the present Carter bridge and Simeon Post Office on State Highway Secondary Route No. 627. He devised other portions of his estate to named sons but the boundaries of these parts are difficult to locate for they are described with reference to landmarks which have long since disappeared. To his son, Robert Carter, he gave the south part of the estate consisting of some 3,500 acres, some 1,200 acres of which comprises the Redlands estate, which in 1953 is owned by Robert Hill Carter, one of his descendants, and this is the only part of the 9,350 acre estate that is owned by a descendant who bears the name of Carter.

The Redlands house was built in the 1790's and stands on an eminence overlooking the Hardware River almost opposite to Viewmont once the home of Joshua Fry, who was the Colonel of the regiment in which George Washington was the Lieutenant Colonel, and after Fry had been killed by falling from his horse at Fort Wills, now Cumberland, Maryland, in 1754, Washington succeeded to the command of this regiment. The story of how Redlands was inherited by three Carter ladies, the Misses Mary Coles Carter, Sarah Randolph Carter, who were known as "Miss Polly" and "Miss Sally," and Margaret Nicholas Carter, how the first two founded St. Timothy School for girls at Catonsville, Maryland, and lived in Maryland but spent their summers at Redlands, and how the sister, Margaret Nicholas Carter, managed Redlands and in her spare time assisted in the school at Catonsville, is a story which, if properly told, shows that these ladies equal the high standard of any of the post-war women of the south about whom Thomas Nelson Page wrote so beautifully. Blenheim estate joins Monticello on the south and its north line crosses the Monticello Road about Michie's Tavern and continues in a north or northwest direction crossing Route 20 just south of the corporation line of the City of Charlottesville. Route 20 lies within the boundary of the grant from that point south to the Hardware River at Carter's bridge some eight miles distance. On the east or left-hand side of Route 20 is a range of mountains which continues along the whole distance. Carter's Mill was located on the north fork of the Hardware River just above its junction with the south fork and just on beyond this point is a large plot of land formerly used as a muster place. The Hardware River marks the south boundary of the 9,350 acre tract and divides it from Viewmont, the Joshua Fry home. Edward Carter established an iron forge on the Hardware River on the land which is now a part of Redlands. At the location of this forge there is a branch flowing into the Hardware River which is still called the Forge Branch. The first Episcopal church in St. Ann's Parish was located near this branch and was known as the Forge Church. The forge served the general neighborhood in supplying parts for agricultural implements, buildings, etc., and the erection of this forge suggests that Colonel Carter thought that there were mineral deposits in these mountains and was the reason why he purchased additional mountain lands contiguous to the Carter patent.

If one is interested in getting an idea of the extent of the Carter estate there is a beautiful drive over hard surface roads some twenty-five miles in extent that will satisfy this interest. Leave Charlottesville on the Scottsville Road, Route 20, and drive to Carter's bridge, then turn left and there is a hard road that lies on the east side of the mountain range which parallels Route 20 and this road, which we call the Blenheim road, practically parallels Route 20 except that it bears to the east and on the right side of the Blenheim road is another range of mountains and the land between these two mountain ranges is comparatively level and might be described as a valley. A short distance from the point you enter the Blenheim road is a good road coming off to the right going into Redlands. Leaving Redlands, you turn right on the Blenheim road past Roundtop, then Morven, formed from the Carter estate in 1769 with the original name Indian Camp from the ruins of an Indian village in the vicinity. In 1842 the south end of the Morven estate was sold and the part cut off was called Ellerslie. The Blenheim house is on the right and you drive in on a side road as you did at Redlands. Blenheim is on an eminence much like Monticello and with much the same view to the north and east. The original house, which was burned many years ago, stood on the site occupied by the small office building (1954) which is in front of the present Blenheim house. In 1836 Andrew Stevenson, once a congressman, speaker of the house, and minister to England, purchased Blenheim, moved back the old spinning house, and built on its front the present Blenheim house. It was his wife, Sally Coles, of Enniscorthy, who during her residence in London presented Queen Victoria with two dozen Albemarle pippins which the Queen so much enjoyed that it opened an English market for this fruit. Many of the old trees are still standing in the yard and a visit to this place is well worth while. Leaving Blenheim you continue on the Blenheim road and pass Ashlawn, which was a part of the Carter land and was purchased by James Monroe in the latter end of the 18th century. On the right side of the road is Calle and the front part of the Calle farm was also a part of the Carter estate. The road turns to the west after you pass Calle and intersects the Monticello road at a point near Michie's Tavern, and you continue on that road until you reach Route 20 and you turn right on Route 20 and return to Charlottesville. Thomas Jefferson purchased a parcel of land out of the Carter 1730 patent, which he included in the Monticello estate, and it was sold when Monticello was sold to satisfy Mr. Jefferson's creditors. The parcel that came out of the Carter tract was sold separately and was first called Fancy Hill and in 1868 a new owner changed the name to Kenwood.

A comprehensive genealogy of the Carter family is found in Robert Randolph Carter's Carter Tree, which is made more useful by the book of the same name gotten out by Robert Isham Randolph, 1951—which tabulates and indexes the Carter Tree. See also Meade's Old Churches and Families of Virginia, Volume 2, page 121, Stanard's Colonial Virginia Register, and various publications that are current in Virginia. In the book, Robert Carter of Nomini Hall by Morton, is a succinct account of the Carter family.

Robert "King" Carter of Corotoman built the church in Lancaster County, Virginia, known as Christ Church. In the chancel of this church is a slab in memory of John Carter, the immigrant, and his wife, Sarah Ludlow, the parents of Robert "King" Carter. Outside of the church, just back of the altar, are the tombs of Robert "King" Carter and his two wives, Judith Armistead and the Widow Willis, born Betty Landon. Some years ago these tombs, which had been practically destroyed, were rebuilt by some of the Carter descendants.

Edward Carter and his wife, Sarah Champe, had thirteen children. Eleven of these children had issue and their descendants have scattered far and wide. Some have achieved distinction. Many of them have the Christian name of Carter or Champe, or a combination of these two names, but wherever they are found these descendants pride themselves on the fact that they are descendants of Robert "King" Carter and of the Carters of Blenheim.

GEORGE SELDEN WALLACE

ATTENTION

After the name of Edward Carter of Blenheim and after the name of each of his children are numbers enclosed in brackets, e.g. Edward Carter (513). These numerals are the numbers given Edward Carter and his children in the book of Robert Isham Randolph, in which he tabulates and indexes the Carter Tree. These numbers make it possible for the various descendants included in this book to connect themselves to the Carter Tree and, in effect, makes this work an enlargement of the Carter Tree.

CHRIST CHURCH

Lancaster County, Virginia
Erected 1732

Christ Church, Lancaster County, Virginia, was built on the site of an earlier Church which John Carter, father of King Carter, had built circa 1654 and is said to have been the first church in the Northern Neck of Virginia. Carter was one of the leading men of his day and torn old Church records disclose that the name "John Carter written in a bold hand always preceded that of the clergyman." John Carter and four of his five wives are buried under the Church and on the gravestone is inscribed—

> Here lyeth buried ye body of John Carter Esqr.
> who died ye 10th day of Jan. Anno Domini 1669 & > also Jane ye daughter of Mr. Morgan Glyn & George > her son & Elinor Carter
> & Ann ye daughter of Mr. Cleave Carter & Sarah ye > Sarah her daughter > which werer all his wives sucksessively & dyed before > him. Blessed are ye deade &c.

The development of this part of the Colony soon made this Church too small for its congregation. Robert "King" Carter at his own cost built on the site of the first Church the brick Church which is still known as Christ Church and which was completed in 1732. It is said to be: "The most ancient and artistic house of worship belonging to the diocese of Virginia," and "the most perfect example of colonial architecture in Virginia."

"King" Carter reserved one fourth of the Church for himself and his heirs forever. Outside of the Church back of the altar and shown on the right of the picture are the tombs of Robert "King" Carter and his two wives, Judith Armistead and the Widow Willis born Betty Landon. Time and vandals wrecked the tombstones but several years ago a number of the Carter descendants restored those tombs. Recently the Church has undergone some modernization.

THE CARTER TREE

In the account which follows I have included the single line from John Carter, the immigrant, to Edward Carter of Blenheim and have included an account of all the known descendants of Edward Carter of Blenheim and have designated each of his several children as of the first generation and the descent numbered progressively from such children.

1. John Carter,[1] born in England about 1620, died June 10, 1669. Migrated to Virginia. Was Burgess for upper Norfolk County at Sessions January 1641, March 1642, 1643. For Nansemond October 1649, for Lancaster November 1654, March 1657, March 1658, March 1659, 1660. In 1658 appointed to the Council. Major and Commander in Chief of North Umberland, Lancaster and Rappahannock Counties. Commanded an expedition against the Rappahannock Indians in 1644. Was arrested by an order given by Cromwell, the Lord Protector in 1659 on the ground that he was a Cavalier. He married a number of times. One wife was Sarah Ludlow, daughter of Gabriel Ludlow, to whom was born a son named

    2. Robert[2] (called "King") Carter, born at Corotoman[3] 1663, died August 4, 1732. Rector of William & Mary College, Speaker of the House of Burgesses, Treasurer of the Colony of Virginia, member of the King's Council, and as president of the Council was Governor of Virginia 1726-27 on account of the death of Governor Hugh Drysdale. He was perhaps the richest man of the Colony in his generation. He built Christ Church in Lancaster County and reserved one-fourth of the church for his heirs forever. He built a number of fine homes for his children, which included Nomini Hall, long since destroyed by fire, Sabine Hall, not far from Warsaw, Virginia, and Carter's Grove near Williamsburg. He married a number of times and one wife was Judith Armistead, who died Feb. 23, 1689. To this union was born a son

    3. John (called Secretary) Carter was sent to Trinity College, Cambridge (England) in 1714, then to the Middle Temple, and was called to the Bar. He was Secretary of State of the Colony of Virginia from 1722 to 1743, and is said to have paid 1500 guineas sterling for the office. In 1723 he married Elizabeth Hill,[4] daughter of Edward Hill of Shirley, from whom she inherited Shirley.

Issue surname CARTER

1. Elizabeth Hill, who married William Byrd III of Westover (see Byrd Genealogy) and one of whose descendants is the present Senator Harry Byrd of Virginia.
2. Charles, known as Charles of Shirley. See Carter Tree. His daughter Ann Hill was the mother of General Robert E. Lee.
3. Edward (513), born at Shirley circa 1733, died at Roxbury, Spotsylvania County in 1792. Married Sarah Champe, daughter of Colonel John Champe of King George County[5] (See Carter v. Tyler, 1st Call 163, Virginia Reports, and Fleming v. Willis, 2nd Call). To this union were born 13 children.

THE JOHN CHAMPE CARTER LINE

1[1] John Champe Carter (5131) was born at Blenheim _____ and died in Amherst County, Virginia _____ and was buried at Rose Hill in that county. He was an Ensign, 7th Virginia, March 18, 1776, resigned January 13, 1777; Captain, First Regiment Artillery, Continental Line October 30, 1777; and was shown on the rolls from that date until 1780 when he was reported on furlough in Virginia. He was wounded at Eutaw, S. C. and taken prisoner on May 12, 1780. He continued a prisoner until May 1, 1783. Rendered supernumerary January 1, 1783, Brevet major September 30, 1783. The first Continental Artillery was composed mostly of Virginians, commanded by Colonel Charles Harrison, November 30, 1776, June 17, 1783; Lt. Colonel Edward Harrington November 30, 1776, June 17, 1783; Major William Brown, January 31, 1781 to June 17, 1783. John Champe Carter was educated in England and was a school mate of General Tarleton of the British Army, by whom he was captured at Eutaw, S. C. Tarleton recognized his old school friend and parolled him. John Champe Carter returned to his home in Virginia and brought with him an Indian, who married one of his slaves. The issue of this union were slaves and the granddaughter of this Indian, named Susan, lived with various members of the Carter family, including the writer's mother, until her death.

John Champe Carter in 1782 married Aphia Fauntleroy,[6,7] daughter of Colonel William Fauntleroy of Naylors Hole, Richmond County (See Parker v. Carter, 4 Munford 273).

2[2] William Fauntleroy Carter was born in Amherst County, Virginia, in 1784 and died on the 20th day of September 1853 at his home, a farm called Runnymede about two miles from Goochland Courthouse, Virginia, and he is buried on this farm. During the War of 1812 he served in Captain John F. Cocke's Company, Cavalry, 102nd Regiment. He was one of the gentlemen justices of Goochland County (See Resolution adopted by the County Court after his death). In an account of William Fauntleroy Carter's death published in one of the Richmond papers, it is said, among other things:

> No man was more generally beloved, or more sincerely lamented. He was possessed of a disposition calculated to make friends wherever he went, for he was kind-hearted, generous, and frank, almost to a fault.

When LaFayette visited Virginia in 1824 he dined at Runnymede and the slave Susan, mentioned in the account of Captain John Champe Carter as the granddaughter of the Indian, waited on the table and she counted this as the great event of her life.

Maria Pleasants Logan was the daughter of Dr. Charles Logan of Bellemeade, Powhatan County, Virginia, which was then a farm consisting of some 1000 acres opposite Rock Castle Station on the James River Division of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad. Dr. Logan was an abolitionist and when he died in 1799 he freed some fifty-one slaves by his will. The inventory of his estate filed in Powhatan courthouse on the 28th of January 1800 listed the fifty-one slaves which he had emancipated by name in his will. Dr. Charles Logan was the grandson of James Logan,[8] one of the Provincial Councilors of Pennsylvania, who lived at his home called Stenton, which is now in the city limits of Philadelphia. The Indian Chief Logan was named for him. At his death James Logan gave his library to the City of Philadelphia and it is now included in a part of the city library but retains the distinctive name of the Loganian Library. After Dr. Logan's death some of his children, including Maria Virginia Logan, were taken to Stenton and lived there until their marriage. Issue of William Fauntleroy Carter and Maria Pleasants Logan.

8[2] Otho Williams, d.s.p. For many years he made his home with his brother William Fauntleroy at Runnymede and later went to visit some of the children of William Fauntleroy Carter by his first wife, Jane Howard. On this visit he made his will and died shortly afterwards. There was a suit in Nelson County contesting the will, William H. Carter v. Moore F. Carter, et als. This suit was settled agreed, but it estranged these two sets of children and they lost sight of each other. They did not become known to each other until some few years ago (1953).

3^{4} Edward Carter Stanard Buffington, born August 11, 1847, died February 24, 1929. Like his father he lived his entire life and died in that part of Cabell County that is now included in the City of Huntington, West Virginia, and like his father was one time Mayor of the city. At the outbreak of the Civil War, he was a staunch Confederate and he, with his friend L. C. Ricketts, went to his father's pasture and secured two horses and went to Dixie. Both were under the military age and were taken out of the Army and sent to V. M. I. as cadets, where with the Cadets they participated in the Battle at New Market, May 15, 1864. After the war, Edward Carter Stanard Buffington, dropped the name of Carter and Stanard Buffington, as he was affectionately known, studied medicine and practiced his profession his entire lifetime in Huntington where he was greatly beloved. He married Nannie (Anne) Lyell, born October 8, 1851, died December 23, 1925, and to this union was born a son.

THE SARAH CARTER (Married Cutting) LINE

4[1] Sarah (5134), married her kinsman George Carter, son of Robert W. Carter of Sabine Hall. They lived at The Park in Stafford County, Virginia, and had a residence in Williamsburg, Virginia. George Carter died 1802. Sarah married, second, Dr. John Brown Cutting, who died February 8, 1831, and continued to live at The Park.

Issue surname CUTTING

1[2] John Brown, born June 1, 1809, died May 20, 1843. On January 1, 1825, he was appointed Midshipman, U. S. Navy, promoted to a Lieutenant 1825. The naval record shows that he was born in Stafford County, Virginia, and his permanent address was shown in the following order; Falkland, Prince William County, P. O. Buckland, Virginia; Carters Bridge, Virginia; Redlands, near Charlottesville, Virginia, and, last, Charlottesville, Virginia.

5[1] Charles (5135) was born at Blenheim in 1751 and died on the 8th day of May 1826 at Deerwood, Pittsylvania County, Virginia. He lived for a time on the farm on Mill Creek in Amherst County, Virginia, which was afterwards given to him under his father's will. He then moved to Spotsylvania County, and the records of that county disclose that his father, Edward Carter, on July 2, 1789, conveyed to him four town lots in Fredericksburg, Virginia, which he sold in 1790 and in the same year his father conveyed to him 430 acres of land adjoining Stewart, which he sold in 1793. From 1793 to 1806 he lived at Western View in Culpeper County, which is on Route 665 some three miles from Culpeper. By a deed dated April 18, 1807, he acquired from Thomas Stribling the estate called North Hill on Route 54, some four miles from Berryville, Virginia, then in Frederick County but now in Clarke County. On July 30, 1817, he sold North Hill to John D. Orr. On March 8, 1813, Charles (5[1]) acquired from Thomas Strode Fleetwood 2400 acres situated one mile south of Elmwood in Culpeper County, Virginia. He sold this property on January 2, 1819, to Thomas Goodwin of Fredericksburg, Virginia, and took as part of the purchase price 5000 acres of land on Panther Creek in Hardin County, Kentucky. In February, 1820, he went to Deerwood and lived there until his death.

5[1] Charles (5135) married May 7, 1781, Elizabeth Lewis,[12] who was born in Fredericksburg, Virginia, February 23, 1765 and died on Good Friday, April 9, 1830, at Audley in Clarke County, the home of her brother, Lawrence Lewis. She was the daughter of Colonel Fielding Lewis and his second wife, Betty Washington, the only sister of General George Washington. In 1950, members of the DAR Chapter at Winchester visited North Hill, which was then owned by Maurice F. Castleman, and discovered the grave of Elizabeth Carter, and buried beside her were three of her children, Mrs. Sarah C. Peyton, Elizabeth W., and Edward Carter. The Chapter restored the headstone of Elizabeth Carter and on this stone it said:
"In the death of this amiable and pious lady the poor have lost a zealous friend and religion a bright example of redeeming faith."

3[2] Henry Rose, born at Mine Hill, Amherst County, 1810, died December 22, 1881, at North River. Studied law and located in Aberdeen, Mississippi, where he was made Judge. After a few years he located in Texas and was made government agent in the removal of Indian tribes from the eastern states to Indian territory, now Oklahoma. After ten years he returned to Virginia but did not resume the practice of law. He married Emma Coleman, daughter of Henry Childs Coleman of Clifton, Caroline County, Virginia, and for some nine years made their home at Clifton. Emma Coleman died April 15, 1909. In 1855 he bought the North River Farm in upper Hanover County, Virginia, where he spent the remainder of his life. He had a strong aversion to having slave families separated and many times purchased a slave to prevent this from happening. When war was declared, he owned 100 slaves. He was fifty years of age and too old for military service, but he saw that Hanover County would be a battle ground so he sent his family to Amherst County, Virginia, believing the northern army would not reach that point. He enlisted in the Hanover Home Guard.

1[3] Hill, born April 12, 1846, and died January 16, 1918. He was reared on the farm, North River, enlisted in the Confederate Army at the age of sixteen. He was taken prisoner and confined at Point Lookout. He attended Gwathmey School in Hanover, took law at the Washington College, now Washington and Lee University; served as Commonwealth Attorney of Hanover County; was a member of the Virginia Constitutional Convention 1901-02; was general counsel of the R. F. & P. Railroad; was retained by a number of larger corporations, including the American Bell Telephone Company; and was considered one of the best trial lawyers in eastern Virginia. He was a man of a keen sense of humor and some idiosyncrasies, and many amusing stories are told about him. A typical story is that he was called to New York by the president of the American Bell Telephone Company for an emergency conference. The next morning after his arrival in that city he went to the general office of the telephone company and asked one of the flunkies in the anteroom if the president was in. The flunkey inquired if he had a card and Hill Carter replied, "Hell, I never had a card in my life. Tell the president I want to see him." After some delays his identity was disclosed to the president and he was invited to come in. The attitude of the men in charge of the waiting room changed entirely and one wanted to take his hat and another his umbrella and they were bowing and scraping and Hill said to them, "What the hell is the matter with you? I am the same man I was thirty minutes ago." He married on the ___ day of _____ Emily Redd.

He devoted his attention mainly to sanitation in connection with Yellow Fever and Malaria beginning in 1888 and had charge and control of several Yellow Fever epidemics in the southern states. Discovered in 1900-01 extrinsic incubation of Yellow Fever and this discovery led to later discoveries by Dr. Walter Reed that mosquitoes are carriers of Yellow Fever. Director of hospital in Panama Canal Zone 1904-09. Name was presented for Nobel Prize in 1904 by Major Sir Ronald Ross. General Goethals, who was in command at Panama, did not care for the Doctor and disclosed that fact to him. Dr. Carter told General Goethals that if he did not care for him personally he need have no contact with him, but if it was on professional grounds, the General could take it up with Washington and Washington would doubtless transfer the Doctor. General Goethals did ask Washington to make the change and the story is that Theodore Roosevelt discussed this with some eminent scientist, who told him if he hoped to finish the Panama Canal not to remove Dr. Carter. Roosevelt wired Goethals "Carter and Gorgas. Hands off." Married on September 29, 1880, Laura Hook, St. Louis, Missouri.

REDLANDS—Built circa 1790s. Now the home of Robert Hill Carter (513a321)

THE ROBERT CARTER (of Redlands) LINE

11[1] Robert, (513a), of Redlands, Albemarle County, Virginia, (born 1778, died 1809) was educated in England. His father, Colonel Edward Carter willed him 3500 acres of the southern part of his Albemarle County land. In 1798 he married Mary Eliza Coles (born June, 1776, at Enniscorthy, Albemarle County, Virginia, died November 1856, at Redlands). She was the daughter of John Coles (born 1745, died 1808) of Enniscorthy and Rebecca E. Tucker (born 1750, died 1826). (See 12, "Coles Family of Virginia")

Very little is known of Robert Carter as he died at the age of 31 after an illness of some duration. He and his bride began building Redlands the year of their marriage—although there is much evidence that his father was preparing to build the house before his death in 1792. Robert was an agriculturist, managing his lands at Albemarle and also those of his mother at nearby Blenheim, until his death. He and his wife joined fully in the gay society of the neighborhood. Tradition has it that the first of a long line of intelligent house servant slaves at Redlands was a young boy Robert won at cards one evening. Among his close neighbors were the families of his wife. There was Isaac Coles (1780-1841) living at his father's house at Enniscorthy, who became Secretary to Thomas Jefferson during the last four years of his Presidency; a Colonel in the War of 1812, and a member of the Legislature in Virginia.

Then there was his brother-in-law, Walter Coles (1772-1854) of nearby Woodville, and his wife, who was Eliza Cocke, daughter of Bowler Cocke of Turkey Island.

Another brother-in-law was John Coles (1774-1848) who built Estouteville. Another was Tucker Coles (1782-1861) of Tallwood. Robert's brother, William Champe Carter, (6[1]), lived just across the Hardware River at Viewmont.

2[2] John Coles, born April 2, 1800, died October 10, 1876. Married first in 1832 at Washington, D. C., Ellen Monroe Bankhead, born 1812, died 1838, daughter of Charles Lewis Bankhead and Anne Cary Randolph, his wife, who was the daughter of Governor Thomas Mann Randolph and Martha Jefferson, his wife. Martha Jefferson was the daughter of Thomas Jefferson. John Coles Carter inherited lands from his father in Albemarle County which he sold about 1852 and moved with his family to Missouri. He is buried in the Churchyard of St. Johns Church, Eolia, Pike County, Missouri.

5^2 Robert Hill, born July 5, 1806, died September 11, 1884. He was educated at Hampden Sydney College and was the second matriculate when the University of Virginia opened. He studied law but practiced only a short time. In 1833 he moved with his slaves to the territory of Mississippi where he raised cotton but due to the death of his mother, he returned to his home, Redlands, in Albemarle County, Virginia, where he farmed and practiced law. He was an avid student of the classics and history and was noted for his remarkable memory. During the War between the States, being too old for active military service, he equipped at his own expense a company for a younger cousin and spent his entire fortune in support of the Confederacy. He was sent twice to the State Legislature from Albemarle. In 1844 he married Margaret Smith (1816-1894) of Baltimore, the daughter of Gen. John Spear Smith of Maryland (1786-1866) and Cary Anne Nicholas (1794-), his wife. She was the granddaughter of General Samuel Smith of Baltimore, Maryland (1752-1839) who was a member of Washington's staff in the Revolution; awarded a sword by Congress for heroism, an original member of The Cincinnati, senator from Maryland for over 30 years, was called from retirement to command the land forces around Baltimore in the successful resistance to the British in the War of 1812 during the attack on Fort McHenry; a personal and staunch political friend of Thomas Jefferson during whose administration he organized the first American Navy.

2^3 Mary Coles,[19] born 1849, d.s.p.

3^3 Robert Smith, born 1853, died 1918. He was christened simply Robert Carter but due to the number of contemporary cousins of the same name and by reason of his deep affection for his grandfather on his mother's side, he added the name Smith after he was grown. In his early manhood he became a surveyor and spent several years in Mexico building the Mexican Central R. R. In 1887 at the age of 34 he entered the Virginia Theological Seminary at Alexandria, Virginia, to study for the ministry in the Episcopal Church. He graduated from there in 1891 and the same year married Elizabeth Lloyd Noland, the youngest daughter of Major Burr Powell Noland of Middleburg, Loudoun County, Virginia. His first call was at Big Stone Gap, Wise County, Virginia, in 1892, where he organized an Episcopal Congregation and built the present church there. In 1895 he accepted a call to Hopkinsville, Kentucky, where he remained until 1901, when he returned to Smithfield, Virginia. In 1908 he was called to St. Thomas' Church in Orange, Virginia, where he was Rector until his death.

The MARY CHAMPE CARTER (Married Brooke) LINE

12[1] Mary Champe, (513b), sometimes called "Polly" born 1778, died October 25, 1846, married February 14, 1804 to Francis Taliaferro Brooke born on August 27, 1763 at his father's farm, Smithfield, Virginia, on the Rappahannock River, about four miles from Fredericksburg and died at St. Julien, March 3, 1851. Francis Taliaferro Brooke was the son of Richard Brooke and his wife, Elizabeth Taliaferro. Richard Brooke was Deputy Clerk of Essex County and one of Governor Spotswood's Knights of the Golden Horse Shoe. Francis Taliaferro Brooke in 1782 was appointed a 1st Lieutenant in Colonel Harrison's Regiment of Artillery (1st Continental Artillery) and served under La Fayette in his campaign against Lord Cornwallis and after the battle of Green Spring near Williamsburg, Virginia, the single company of Artillery of Harrison's Regiment to which Brooke belonged was ordered south to join General Green. By reason of the demoralized conditions in Virginia the Company marched by a circuitous Route which took them by Goochland and Cumberland Court Houses. They finally joined Green's command on the Ashley River near Charleston, South Carolina. General Green appointed him Q.M. of the park of Artillery on the condition that he did not give up his commission and rank in the line. The march from Virginia to South Carolina took about 20 days and the company was not supplied with rations and they impressed provisions along the way. There was also trouble about pay and Brooke was paid one month's pay in paper which was so depreciated that he was given thirty three thousand dollars in paper money in lieu of "thirty three and two thirds dollars in specie."

After the British evacuated the Carolinas the Artillery Company to which Brooke belonged was placed under General Posey and sent to Savannah, Georgia and was stationed at Fort Wayne near the City and its officers were most hospitably treated.

While at Savannah the troops were ordered to Augusta, Georgia to an Indian treaty making and the soldiers were ordered to turn out with whiskers and mustaches in order "to look fierce." Brooke was too young to grow whiskers so he used black Pomatum and looked very fierce. General Wayne was in command and had defeated the Indians and ordered that no prisoners should be taken but some of the Virginia troops did not carry out this order but took back 16 Indian prisoners. General Wayne promptly had them bayoneted. Francis Taliaferro Brooke was a member of the Society of the Cincinnati and once its Vice President. The war ended Judge Brooke was undecided upon a career and he says he wasted two or three years fox hunting and for a time he studied medicine. He then turned to the law and in 1788 applied for a license. The examining board consisted of the Attorney General, Mr. Innes, Mr. German Baker and Col. John Taylor of Caroline. He was examined by Mr. Baker but Mr. Innes was too busy to examine him and Brooke returned home discouraged; however, in a few days he received a letter from one of his army friends, Capt. Barrett of Colonel Washington's Reg't. who told him that Mr. Innes had expressed to the Capt. his great regret that he had not had it in his power to examine Mr. Brooke but that he had talked with Mr. Baker and was fully satisfied with Mr. Brooke's competence and to have Mr. Brooke send him his license and he would sign it. This was done and Brooke was given a license to practice law.

In 1798 he located in Morgantown now in West Virginia and continued there until 1800 when he moved to Tappahannock and practiced law in Essex and the adjoining Counties and was once associated with Bushrod Washington in the practice of law. He was elected to the House of Delegates from Essex 1794-95. Was President of the State Senate. In 1800 was elected to the General Court and rode the Circuit of the District Court until the Circuit Court was established and he was assigned to the Circuit which included Goochland, Hanover, Essex, Caroline and Spotsylvania. In 1811 he was elected Judge of the Court of Appeals and continued on that Court until his death.

Judge Brooke in his 87th year assisted by his daughter, Helen, as an amanuensis wrote a monograph entitled "A Narrative of My Life for My Family." It is most interesting. He tells of his first marriage in 1790 to Mary Randolph Spotswood, daughter of General Alex Spotswood and great granddaughter of the Governor Spotswood. She died in June 1803 and left him with four children. He was terribly shocked at her death and says he was advised to go to Virginia Springs which he did and began to look out for another wife. While at Warm Springs, Virginia, with Mr. Giles and some of his friends a carriage arrived with some ladies and he was introduced to Mary Champe Carter. He says "There is something in destiny for as soon as I took hold of the hand of Mary Champe Carter . . . I felt she would amply supply the place of my lost wife. I begun my attendance to her from that moment. In person and in face she was very beautiful. Mr. Jefferson said of her, 'She is the most beautiful woman I have ever seen, either in France or in this country.' Her sister, Nancy, who married Governor Troupe of Georgia, was thought by some equally handsome. Mary Champe had brilliant teeth and beautiful dark hair but her beauty was not her only charm; her soft and feminine manners were still more attractive." Mary Champe was apparently living in Fredericksburg, Virginia, with her mother, Sarah Champe Carter. Judge Brooke continues "that on our return to Fredericksburg, Virginia," he seriously addressed her and although "I had powerful rivals, I soon found that I had won her affections." And on the 14th day of February 1804 they were married and for a time lived in Fredericksburg in a small house next to her mother, Sarah Champe Carter. Judge Brooke says he then built a small brick house with a shed to it in the country and Mary Champe agreed to move to the country. This probably is the small house shown in the side view of St. Julien. The Judge was seldom at home and the wife had the trouble of planting the hedges, attending to laying out the garden, planting the fruit, and housekeeping. The Judge was away from home some five to six months at a time. They lived together 42 years and both are buried in a graveyard overlooking the dwelling at St. Julien. In the narrative to his family, Judge Brooke speaks of his knowing George Washington, General Gates, Green, and Wayne. Tells of his contact with Thomas Jefferson who gave him a parliamentary manual.

FOOTNOTES

(1) John Carter in his will provided that his son, Robert, now known as "King" Carter, should have "a man or youth servant bought for him, that hath been brought up in the Latin school. that he shall constantly attend upon him, not only to teach him his books either in English or Latin . . . and also to preserve him from harm or doing evil." Robert "King" Carter went to England and completed his formal education.

(2) Robert "King" Carter had five daughters—

By his first wife Judith Armistead:

(1) Elizabeth, who married, first, Nathaniel Burwell and second, George Nicholas.

(2) Judith, who married Mann Page of Rosewell, Gloucester County, Virginia.

(3) Anne, who married Benjamin Harrison of Berkley, Charles City County, Virginia.

By his second wife Elizabeth Landon Willis:

(4) Mary, who married George Braxton of Newington, King and Queen Counties, Virginia.

(5) Lucy, who married Colonel Henry Fitzhugh of Eagle Nest, Stafford County, Virginia.

(3) Corotoman in Lancaster County, Virginia, passed by inheritance to George Carter, the second son of Charles Carter of Shirley. It was burned about 1832.

(4) Elizabeth Hill

In 1656 a band of some six or seven hundred Indians, said to have been western Indians and called Ricahecrian, appeared near the falls of James River. The Virginia Assembly promptly authorized an expedition to be sent against them. Colonel Edward Hill of Shirley was in command. He had 100 men and Totopotomoi, King of the Pamunkey Indians with 100 warriors. Hill fought the Indians near Bloody Run, a small stream in the Eastern part of the City of Richmond, and was badly defeated.

Totopotomoi and a large number of his warriors were killed. Colonel Hill was blamed for the defeat. The Virginia Assembly by a unanimous vote held that Hill was for "crimes and deficiencies of conduct" suspended from all offices civil and military. This Colonel Edward Hill was the grandfather of the Colonel Edward who was the father of Elizabeth Hill.

(5) For an account of the Champe family see Virginia Magazine of History and Biography, Volume XLIV-203 (1936) by W. M. McCroaty. Judge Minor of San Antonio, Texas, has an oil portrait of John Champe of Lambs Creek. Sarah was called Sally. In her later life she lived for a time in Alexandria, Virginia, but she died on September 18, 1814, in and was buried in Washington County, District of Columbia. George M. Troupe, who married her daughter, Ann, was administrator. He was at that time a member of Congress and his home was in Laurens County, Georgia. Francis T. Brooke v. Pairo et al. in Superior Court of Chancery, Fredericksburg, Virginia. The depositions in this case give an interesting sidelight on "Sally" Champe and the disposition of the Carter plate mentioned in Item of Edward Carter's will.

(6) Aphia Fauntleroy was descended from Colonel Moore Fauntleroy, (b. 1616, d.), who came to Virginia from England before 1643. Settled in upper Norfolk County. Had "Confirmation of Arms" issued to him in 1633 by Garter King at Arms. Member of the House of Burgesses, Justice, etc., and an extensive land owner. See account of family in Virginia Historical Magazine July 1891.

(7) In the Volume "Journal and Letters, Philip Fithian, 1767-1774" on pages 222 to 224, inc. is an account of a dance at Hobbs Hole (now Tappahannock, Virginia), in which it is said: "Miss Aphia Fauntleroy danced next, the best dancer of the whole absolutely and the finest girl. Her head was powdered white as snow and craped in the newest taste. She is the copy of the Goddess of Modesty—very handsome; she seemed to be loved by all her acquaintances, and admired by every stranger."

(8) See Provincial Councilors of Pennsylvania, Keith.

(9) See the "Sclater Family in Virginia" by George Selden Wallace.

(10) The Wallace family was one of the early Settlers in western Albemarle County, Virginia. Woods History, Albemarle County.

(11) His kinsman James Stewart owned the property at 707 E. Franklin Street, Richmond, Virginia, home of General Robert E. Lee from 1863-65, inclusive. After the surrender Mr. Stewart proposed to General Lee that he occupy the house rent free. General Lee declined and said he believed in the sanctity of contracts and he would continue to pay rent. Mr. Stewart replied that he too, believed that contracts should be observed but that the rent reserved in General Lee's rental contract was payable in Confederate money and that he would accept no other kind of money as rent.

(12) Mrs. E. W. Gamble, Jr., of Alexandria, Virginia, has Bettie Lewis's Bible and the names of her children and their birth dates are taken from this Bible.

(13) Son of Daniel Groff Smith of Loudoun County, Virginia, who owned and lived at Morven, Albemarle County, Virginia.

(14) In the book "The Lees of Virginia" by Burton J. Hendricks is a letter under date of September 6, 1821, from Samuel Appleton Storrow, Judge Advocate, U. S. Army, which contains the statement that Henry "Lighthorse Harry" Lee proposed to Maria Farley twice before he addressed Ann Hill Carter of Shirley and that Maria Farley refused him.

(15) Farley was a year in building and during that time William Champe Carter lived on Western View with his brother Charles. The two sisters-in-law were devoted to each other and each called the other "Sister Carter."

(16) Thomas Storrow was born in England and his father was an Englishman who made a fortune in Jamaica. In his will he gave his son, Thomas Storrow, the greater part of his estate, some of which he entailed. In 1777 the young man was in Jamaica and sailed for England in July of that year. The ship on which he was a passenger was captured by one of Ios. Marguard's privateers and taken to Newburyport, Massachussetts and young Storrow was released on parole. There were a number of families in that neighborhood who were Tories in sympathy and these folks were kind to him. He met Mr. John Pierce of Portsmouth, New Hampshire, who invited him to visit him in Portsmouth, which Storrow did. While on this visit Thomas Storrow met Ann Appleton, whom he married on the 2nd of December 1777. In that winter there was an epidemic of smallpox and Ann Appleton had a very severe case of it. In 1778 Thomas Storrow and his wife went to England by way of New York. On the 30th of December 1778 he was commissioned an Ensign in the Queen's (Royal) Regiment foot and accompanied by his wife went to Antigua. Some two years later an expedition against St. Lucia was organized and the officers' wives were sent back to England. Storrow went on this expedition with the 88th Regiment commanded by General St. Ledger. Health conditions were terrible and the Regiment lost two-thirds of its men by disease. Storrow obtained the rank of captain and in 1784 left the Army and went to Halifax, Nova Scotia. In Halifax he and Mr. Butler, who was connected with his wife by marriage, bought the larger part of the Island of Cambo Bello. Storrow and his family lived on this island until 1791 when David Owens, claiming the land under an older patent, brought suit against Storrow for the land. Storrow contested the suit but lost and the expense of the litigation seriously impaired his fortune. However, he had some property left in Jamaica and he and his family went there. His health failed and he and his family went to Boston and landed in that city in the latter part of August 1794. In the October 11, 1794 issue of the Columbia Continental is the following notice:

> "Died in this town Tuesday, October 7th, Thomas Storrow, Esq., aet. 38, of the Island of Jamaica. His remains were yesterday committed to the grave with municipal and Masonic honors."

His wife opened a boarding school for girls at Hingham, which she continued until her death in 1796. The August 17, 1796 issue of the Columbia Continental contained the following item:

> "Died yesterday at Hingham, Mass. Mrs. Ann Storrow, aet. 36, and will be interred tomorrow. This amiable, good and virtuous woman."

Ann Storrow and her husband were buried under Trinity Church in Boston and after the Church was burned all the bodies interred under the Church were moved to Mt. Auburn, Cambridge, and all the graves numbered.

(17) A decedent of Samuel Appleton of Ipswich, Massachussetts, 1635.

(18) See Wood Genealogy in Volume 53 (1945), Virginia Magazine of History.

(19) Mary Coles Carter and her sister Sarah Randolph Carter were always known as Miss Polly and Miss Sally. They founded St. Timothy School for Girls at Catonsville, Maryland, near Baltimore, which is one of the foremost girls schools in America. Both of them lived in Baltimore, spending their summers in Redlands in Albemarle County, and their sister Margaret Nicholas Carter assisted at St. Timothy School and after the death of their father and mother she supervised the farming at Redlands.

(20) Greenwood is in Culpeper County, Virginia and was the home of the Green family for a number of generations. In 1825 it was the home of Judge John W. Green of the Virginia Court of Appeals who entertained La Fayette there on August 22, 1825. For an account of the Green family in Culpeper County, Virginia. See St. Marks Parish by Philip Slaughter, Vol. I, Page 62 et Sec.

THIRD AMPHIBIOUS FORCE
OFFICE OF THE COMMANDER

In the name of the President of the United States and by direction of the Commander-in-Chief, United States Pacific Fleet, The Commander THIRD Amphibious Force, United States Pacific Fleet, takes pleasure in presenting the NAVY CROSS to

COMMANDER CARTER BROOKE JENNINGS, UNITED STATES NAVY

for service as set forth in the following

CITATION:

"For distinguishing himself by extraordinary heroism as Commanding Officer of a United States destroyer during action against enemy Japanese forces in SURIGAO STRAIT, PHILIPPINE ISLANDS, on the night of 24-25 October 1944. Although illuminated and subjected to enemy fire, Commander JENNINGS brought his ship to within short range of heavy enemy vessels, launched a daring torpedo attack, which inflicted severe damage on the enemy, and retired without loss or injury. The successful attack contributed in large measure to eliminating an imminent and dangerous threat to our transports and other ships in LEYTE GULF. His high professional skill, forceful leadership, and gallant devotion to duty were in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service."

T. S. WILKINSON
VICE ADMIRAL, U. S. NAVY

(22) This is the same person who married Helen Brooke Hamilton, August 30, 1849. 30, 1849.
